

THE GAZETTE AND DAILY, YORK, PA., FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 24, 1939.

Federal Government Pushes Plans For Codorus Creek Dam

CONSTRUCTION MAY START THIS JUNE

Recreation South-west of York Will Be $100,000 Work - By Paul Holt

TO WIDEN CHANNEL

The federal government is pushing its plan to build a dam on the Codorus creek near York, Pa., which will be the largest of its kind in the state.

The dam will be 120 feet high and will be the largest of its kind in the state.

The dam will be 120 feet high and will be the largest of its kind in the state.

THE BELL HOUSE DAM - This is a photograph of the dam site, showing the area where the dam will be built.

THE WEST MARKET STREET BRIDGE - This is a photograph of the West Market Street bridge, which will be affected by the dam's construction.

AT THE POINT OF THE FARMER'S SETTLEMENT - This is a photograph of a farmer's settlement, which will be affected by the dam's construction.

THE BOLD INVESTIGATION - This is a photograph of a bold investigation, which will be affected by the dam's construction.

FROM THE WEST MARKET STREET BRIDGE - This is a photograph taken from the West Market Street bridge, showing the dam's construction.

(Continued on Page 20)

Indian Rock Dam - 1939

Clipped By:
tryshaloam
Sun, Nov 21, 2021